ROOT'S SPEECH USED.

He referred to a speech by Secy. Root calling attention to the fact that the states were not exercising powers conferred upon them by their state governments, and when they did not they must not complain of Congress assuming the right to do what they fail to do. He also quoted the president as having recently said that there were certain evils "Congress ought to find a way" to remedy. The president's power, he said, was fully defined by the Constitution and no "interpellation" should be made to extend those powers. Mr. Teller spoke on the bill granting a right to a private company to construct a dam in the Snake river. Washington, declaring that the rights sought is that bill belowed to the state and in that bill belonged to the state and not to the federal government.

PINCHOT'S BUREAU CRITICIZED.

Senator Teller criticized in sharp terms the administration of the forest reserves, contending that they were largely conducted under regulations of the bureau which transcend the law and afforded but poor opportunity to either the homesteader or the prospector to avail himself of the opportunities which Congress intended to afford both classes.

The remainder of the day was devoted to discussion of the Benton dam bill on its merits. As on yesterday, Senators Heyburn and Borah, both of Idaho, took opposing sides. Heyburn opposing and Borah favoring. Mr. Heyburn declared he would maintain his position even if satisfied that by doing so he would imperil his seat in the senate. No vote had been reached when, at 4:30 p. m., the senate adjourned.
